HAPPY TRAILS

Commencement may have crept in, through the fog, on little cat feet — but the class of 1992 went out with a roar. More than 200 students received degrees at the May 9 festivities, ascending the steps of Mary Chapel bathed in ethereal mists that threatened to turn to rain for much of the day. Nevertheless, spirits remained undampened. Lilia Aguila, a Doheny graduate, welcomed the crowd on behalf of the class of '92; baccalaureate grad Shari Man offered the class tribute. Both urged a new commitment to community as a means of helping knit together neighborhoods torn apart during the catastrophic L.A. riots.

The keynote speaker was award-winning independent television producer Marian Rees, whose credits include The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman, Love is Never Silent, and the recent Miss Rose White for Hallmark Hall of Fame. Rees offered some thoughts on the power of images.

"The television industry creates images which influence society's consciousness — and the creators of those images hold enormous power...the failure of television, one of the most influential educational media in America today, to absorb and reflect the dynamics of (our) diverse cultures is, to quote Bill Moyers, 'the shame of our industry.' For me it is the shame of our nation, a nation in desperate need of a new literacy, a cultural literacy... ."

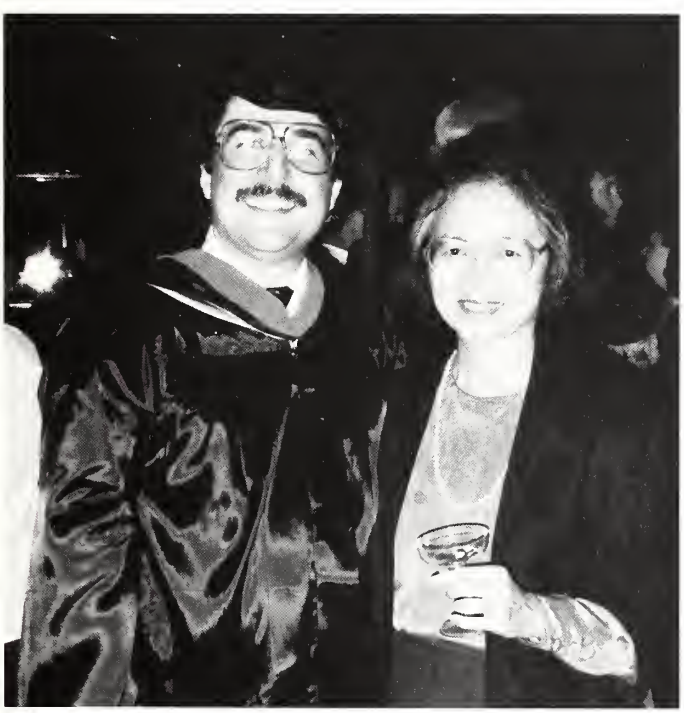
Marian Rees is flanked by Regents Council Chairman Roger Hughes and Sister Karen prior to the pomp and circumstance.



After the graduate hooding ceremony, Maurice Hamington and Alexis Navarro, chair of graduate religious studies, join the festivities in the Pompeian Room.

Maurice Hamington, an alum of the Mount graduate program in religious studies and a professor in the MSMC business department, addressed the graduate hooding ceremony at the Doheny campus May 7.

"...I considered titling this talk 'How Mount St. Mary's College Ruins Careers,' because I, like other students that I've spoken to in the graduate religious program, was on track to reap all the material benefits of a yuppie business career. Then one day I made the fateful decision to return to school for some self-actualization and to learn more about my faith. In a sense I would never leave, because Mount St. Mary's embraced me, showed me another way, and put me on a path to study ethics, teach and think about relatedness. Mount St. Mary's ruined a perfectly good business career...this college is a powerful place that is doing some very important work that transcends difference. The Mount is a pillar of diversity without teaching division... ."

For complete transcripts of remarks by either Marian Rees or Maurice Hamington, call the public relations office at (310) 471-9529.

From the President

Our year-end activities all took place in the context of the riots that devastated so many areas of Los Angeles. As alumnae and friends of the College, you can be very proud of the way the MSMC community responded to the crisis. Warm bonds of care and concern brought our Doheny and Chalon students together when we evacuated Doheny residents to Chalon, April 30-May 1, as a precautionary measure. In the same spirit exhibited in the wake of the Bel Air fires of 1961, which we commemorated last year, final exams and all commencement activities took place as originally planned.

We consider ourselves blessed by God to have come through the riot-sparked fires and destruction completely undamaged. At the same time, we sorrow over the damage inflicted on the city, its people and businesses. The College's continuing dedication to community service, highlighted in the spring issue of the Mount St. Mary's College Magazine, has helped lay the foundation for the ongoing work of improving the inner-city environment and helping the sick and needy. Mount St. Mary's College reaffirms this long-standing commitment to do whatever it can through neighborhood activism, participation in city-wide commissions, and the educational process itself — making a vital contribution to the building of a new and better Los Angeles.

Future Fortunes

The classic anxiety-filled question facing '92 grads: "What next?" The answer, for some:

Baccalaureate graduates

Shari Man will work in a trauma center in Queens Hospital, Honolulu;

Christina Reyes and Marsha Nickerson will enter a master's in nursing program at UCLA;

Lucy Ford plans to join the "Volunteer with Elders" program at the Hollywood-Wilshire Public Health department;

Charlene Niemi will work as a public health nurse at the Van Nuys Health department;

Rita Oregon begins medical school this fall at UCLA;

Alma Maldanado is spending the summer doing research at the Brentwood Science Magnet School and will also attend UCLA medical school;

Aurora Del Villar is deciding between medical school at Drew/UCLA or graduate studies in physiology at Wayne State University, Detroit;

Elizabeth King will attend George Washington University, Washington, D.C., this fall;

Donna Burr has been accepted at the Monterey Institute of International Studies, where she'll earn an MBA in a program that strongly emphasizes foreign languages;

Jennifer Bright will head for grad school in psychology at Claremont;

Terry Yugar will spend a year in Peru on a Fulbright Fellowship, and has been accepted into the divinity program at Harvard University;

Susan Dadian will study psychology at LMU;

Tegest Tessema will begin graduate work at Eastern Washington University.

Associate in Arts graduates

Lilia Aguila will teach at Child Time Preschool in Commerce;

Elvia Lopez and Lulu Montoya are employed at Trade Tech Child Development Center — Montoya also serves as a bilingual teacher aide at 61st St. School;

Gema Medina is working as a teacher's assistant at Monte Vista Street School;

Margarita Mora is working at UPS;

Elia Robles plans to work at Jefferson High School.

At press time, at least 46 second-year Doheny students and more than a dozen first-year students had been accepted for baccalaureate study at Chalon. Other Doheny grads will continue their studies at UC Irvine, UC Riverside, CSU Long Beach, and USC.

TGIF

The Weekend College will be launched at MSMC in September 1992 at the Chalon campus. There will be two majors: business and liberal arts.

Classes will be held on six non-consecutive weekends each semester, beginning the weekend of September 12-13. The semester ends on the weekend of December 12-13. Adult students from the world of full-time employment can enjoy all the benefits of a total college experience without disrupting their careers.

It is possible, by attending class on Saturdays and Sundays, to take from one to three courses each semester. One class each semester will meet only on Saturday; the other two bridge the two days.

Bulletins explaining the program and additional information can be requested from the Weekend College Office at (310) 476-2237.

If you once attended Mount St. Mary's but weren't able to finish, please consider this program as a means of attaining that cherished bachelor's degree.

Exporting American Art

"For me, old objects are like colors on a palette or paint in tubes. I see them as just another kind of brush stroke... I make a connection between an object and an idea and then put it into a piece," says art department chair Norman Schwab in The Japan Times. Schwab's work was exhibited in Japan last spring at the 5th Nagoya Contemporary Art Fair, and at the Nob gallery in Okazaki.

Schwab also lectured at the University of Nagoya during a visit to Japan, speaking about contemporary art on the West Coast and the creative process in the visual arts. "Art is like layers of skin," Schwab says. "You remove one layer and feel another and another. I find an idea and explore it, removing the layers of skin... I keep discovering new things."

Hooray for Hollywood!

High anxiety on campus? 90210 in 90049? Jessica Fletcher finding clues to a murder in the Doheny mansion? Whether high drama or low comedy, major motion picture or commercial, Hollywood stars both established and on the rise have been featured in productions filmed "on location" at the Doheny and Chalon campuses.

In the process of making movie magic, Doheny's Stimson House has become haunted; a mad scientist has prowled the Doheny mansion; and the Chalon campus has doubled as the grounds of a fashionable local high school.

Filming on campus attracts major production companies, gives exposure to the College, and benefits the students of MSMC. College observers have noticed that showbiz isn't all glamour and glitz. Watching Meryl Streep and Goldie Hawn on the steps of Mary Chapel on a warm day in June, one interested MSMC staff member remarked, "I don't think I'd like to do what those actresses are doing ... they rehearse the scene ten times, film it twice, and then the director goes up to them and tells them all the things they did wrong!"

Angela Lansbury between "takes" at the Doheny mansion

Eventually Hollywood gets things right, and the audience sees the final cut on the screen. Look for some of your favorite stars gracing Doheny and Chalon in these movies and television ventures:

The Three Amigos
Less Than Zero
High Anxiety
Another You
Death Becomes Her
The Winds of War
War and Remembrance
Death in Palm Springs
My Friend Frank
Columbo

When in Rome

The last two weeks of May found alumna and MSMC professor MaryAnn Bonino with a group of 20 artistically-inclined travelers delighting in the music, art and architecture of Italy. The group shared gourmet meals and gala concerts in Florence, Venice, Rome, Milan and Bologna. "To choose a single event or day that was the best is like trying to choose among your children—we loved them all," Bonino says. "A private guitar concert by David Richter in the Benedictine Abbey at Passignano, just outside of Florence, was an exceptional event —definitely one of the highlights." Bonino will do it all again next year, so for information on the spring 1993 tour, call the DaCamera Society at (213) 747-9085.

Doheny: the First Three Decades

The 1992-93 academic year will mark the 30th anniversary of the two-year associate in arts program at the Doheny campus. The campus and the city have seen many changes since 1962, but the Doheny mission remains ever-consonant with the central spirit of Mount St. Mary's College, and the continuing commitment to meeting the needs of a diverse population of students. The College's all-campus Siena Day celebration, scheduled for Wednesday, March 3, 1993, will highlight the history and success of the Doheny campus.

Although we are in the early planning stages, we are considering a program that may involve a turn-of-the century picnic, a tour of the Doheny mansion and presentation on its architectural and social history, or a discussion focusing on the evolution of the neighborhood. A special gathering for Doheny alums is slated for Saturday, March 6. We'd love to hear from alums with memories of their Doheny Days—including photos and memorabilia, or written recollections—and would welcome suggestions for how best to commemorate this significant anniversary. Call the alumnae office at (310) 471-9522 with your ideas.

In the Disney Spotlight

More than 60 musicians had a week-long musical adventure on the Chalon campus this summer — the eldest in the group had just scaled the heights of his thirteenth birthday. This gifted assembly participated in a Summer Music Camp held from July 26 to August 3, sponsored by Disney's Young Musicians Foundation. Months of preparation were capped by an intense week of rehearsal under the baton of several prestigious guest conductors, including Boston Pops maestro John Williams and composer Henry Mancini. The efforts of the dedicated youngsters will be documented in a one-hour televised special airing September 15 on The Disney Channel. Tune in — you may get an early glimpse of some future stars of the MSMC music department!

Amazing Grace

Sister Rose Bernard (Grace Irene) McCabe, former Director of Residence, Dean of Students, and Executive Director of Alumnae Relations, passed away peacefully on May 27.

Born a hefty 12 pounds, Sister Rose Bernard seemed throughout life barely able to maintain her birthweight. This diminutive dynamo nonetheless emerged early as a leader—daring classmates and fellow novices to participate in pranks and escapades that belied her inner spirituality. In 1929, she and a friend arranged a ride in a two-seater airplane as a final fling before entering the sedate life of the convent.

But Sister's life in the convent was anything but sedate. She arranged to have a photograph taken of her reception at a time when postulants were not allowed to be photographed; that photo exists today as historic testimony to her singular spunk and inventiveness.

Sister Rose Bernard began her career teaching at Our Lady of Angels in San Diego in 1932. After suffering a debilitating illness in 1937, Sister was sent to The Boys' Opportunity School in Tucson to rest and recuperate in the warm desert climate. Within five months she was in complete charge of the boys: doing their laundry, cleaning the chapel and teaching grades 5 through 8. "I just did what was needed," she said in recalling those days.

Sister returned to teaching in California in 1939, when she was transferred to St. Jarlath's in Oakland. In 1942 she became principal at St. John's in San Diego; in 1946, superior and principal at St. Theresa's School in Fresno; and in 1965, principal at Alemany High School in Mission Hills. When she learned that some of the sisters stationed with her in Fresno had never seen Yosemite, she organized a trip. On another occasion, needing a respite from the summer heat, she arranged for her entire community to vacation in Carmel—at the time a rare opportunity for those in religious life.

As Director of Elementary Education for all the CSJ schools from 1952-58, and later as Director of Vocations for the community, the energetic sister who thought she would never have the opportunity to fly once she became a nun became a veteran traveller. Over the years she explored Europe, the Holy Land, Hawaii, Alaska, and many other places in the western United States.

In 1968, Sister returned to her alma mater, Mount St. Mary's College, to assume the job of Director of Residence; in 1972, she was appointed Dean of Students. Finally, in 1978, she eagerly agreed to work with the Alumnae Association. As Director, she supervised the computerization of alumnae records, assisted with many successful fashion shows, and initiated the volunteer phonathon. A massive brain hemorrhage six years ago left her in a coma for two months; her recovery amazed medical experts. She subsequently returned to campus in a new role as Director Emerita of the Alumnae Association, continuing to be involved with alumnae activities and her many close friends at the College.

Sister Rose Bernard inspired us to look at the positive side of life—though not without recognizing and accepting life's inherent pain. Bringing out the best in others by love and encouragement, she showed us how to live fully, and find joy in life's simple pleasures. It was no surprise that many at her memorial service recalled that they last saw Sister Rose Bernard at a party or celebration: the alumnae board dinner, the 50th reunion, a sister's feast day, a gathering of the fashion show committee. Hers was truly a special Grace.

Editor's Note: A scholarship is being established at the College as a tribute to Sister Rose Bernard; please contact the Alumnae Office at (310) 471-9522, or 12001 Chalon Road, Los Angeles, CA 90049, for further information.

Sister Magdalen Coughlin Endowed Scholarship Program Tops $6 Million Goal

Good news! With the invaluable help of the friends honored on these pages, Mount St. Mary's College has successfully completed a three-year campaign, raising $6.1 million in gifts and pledges. Named to honor the College's president from 1976-1989, the Sister Magdalen Coughlin Endowed Scholarship Fund brings MSMC's total scholarship endowment to more than $12 million.

"An outpouring of enthusiasm and support from alumnae and friends helped us successfully match challenge grants from The Times Mirror, the George H. Mayr, and The James Irvine foundations—all of which have put us over the top," said David L. McIntyre, senior vice president of the Zenith Insurance Co., and the MSMC trustee who chaired the campaign.

As the College continues to enroll and graduate a culturally and economically diverse student body, there will be many future students unable to afford a Mount St. Mary's education without financial aid. As government aid declines, new endowed scholarship funds are essential to providing these students a quality education without unduly burdening them with loan debt.
